Replacement front door (not historic); front porch add./replacement S. porch (historic--c. 1905); S side door, surround, & canopy/stoop (not historic); glass block in basement windows (not historic); 6/6 replacement windows on N elevation (historic); aluminum canopy & stoop on N entry (not historic)

Additional Information

[from A GUIDE TO CHICAGO'S HISTORIC SUBURBS, p. 401]

"This clapboard farmhouse, built in 1874, has the massing and details reminiscent of Greek Revival, but with pedimented window heads characteristic of the 1870s date. Added at the turn of the century was the porch with its four, standard, Tuscan columns. The west end of the building has a porch from the same construction campaign and columns selected from the same catalogue, but with slightly different proportions."

[from A GUIDE TO CHICAGO'S HISTORIC SUBURBS, p. 401]

"This frame house was built about four years earlier than 105 N. Ellsworth Street (Naperville#4) and is slightly grander. Notice that the pedimented windows are larger, its pedimented window heads are slightly grander, and the porch (which here is original) has brackets above the posts that stand on high podia. On the south end is a flat-fronted projection with its own hipped roof. The porch railing is not original."

Alterations

Recent renovation. Appropriate restoration work includes: replacement siding; replacement porch spindles and supports; replacement 1/1 windows; multi-light replacement windows on front bay; north entry porch; 1 story rear addition. Inappropriate alterations include glass block basement windows and a large 2-story addition to the south, including entry and porch, which is difficult to distinguish from the original massing of the home.
